BRAND STORY INTRODUCTION

For over seventy years, Brandimarte has been a benchmark of excellence in Italian silverware where tradition, craftsmanship, and innovation meet.

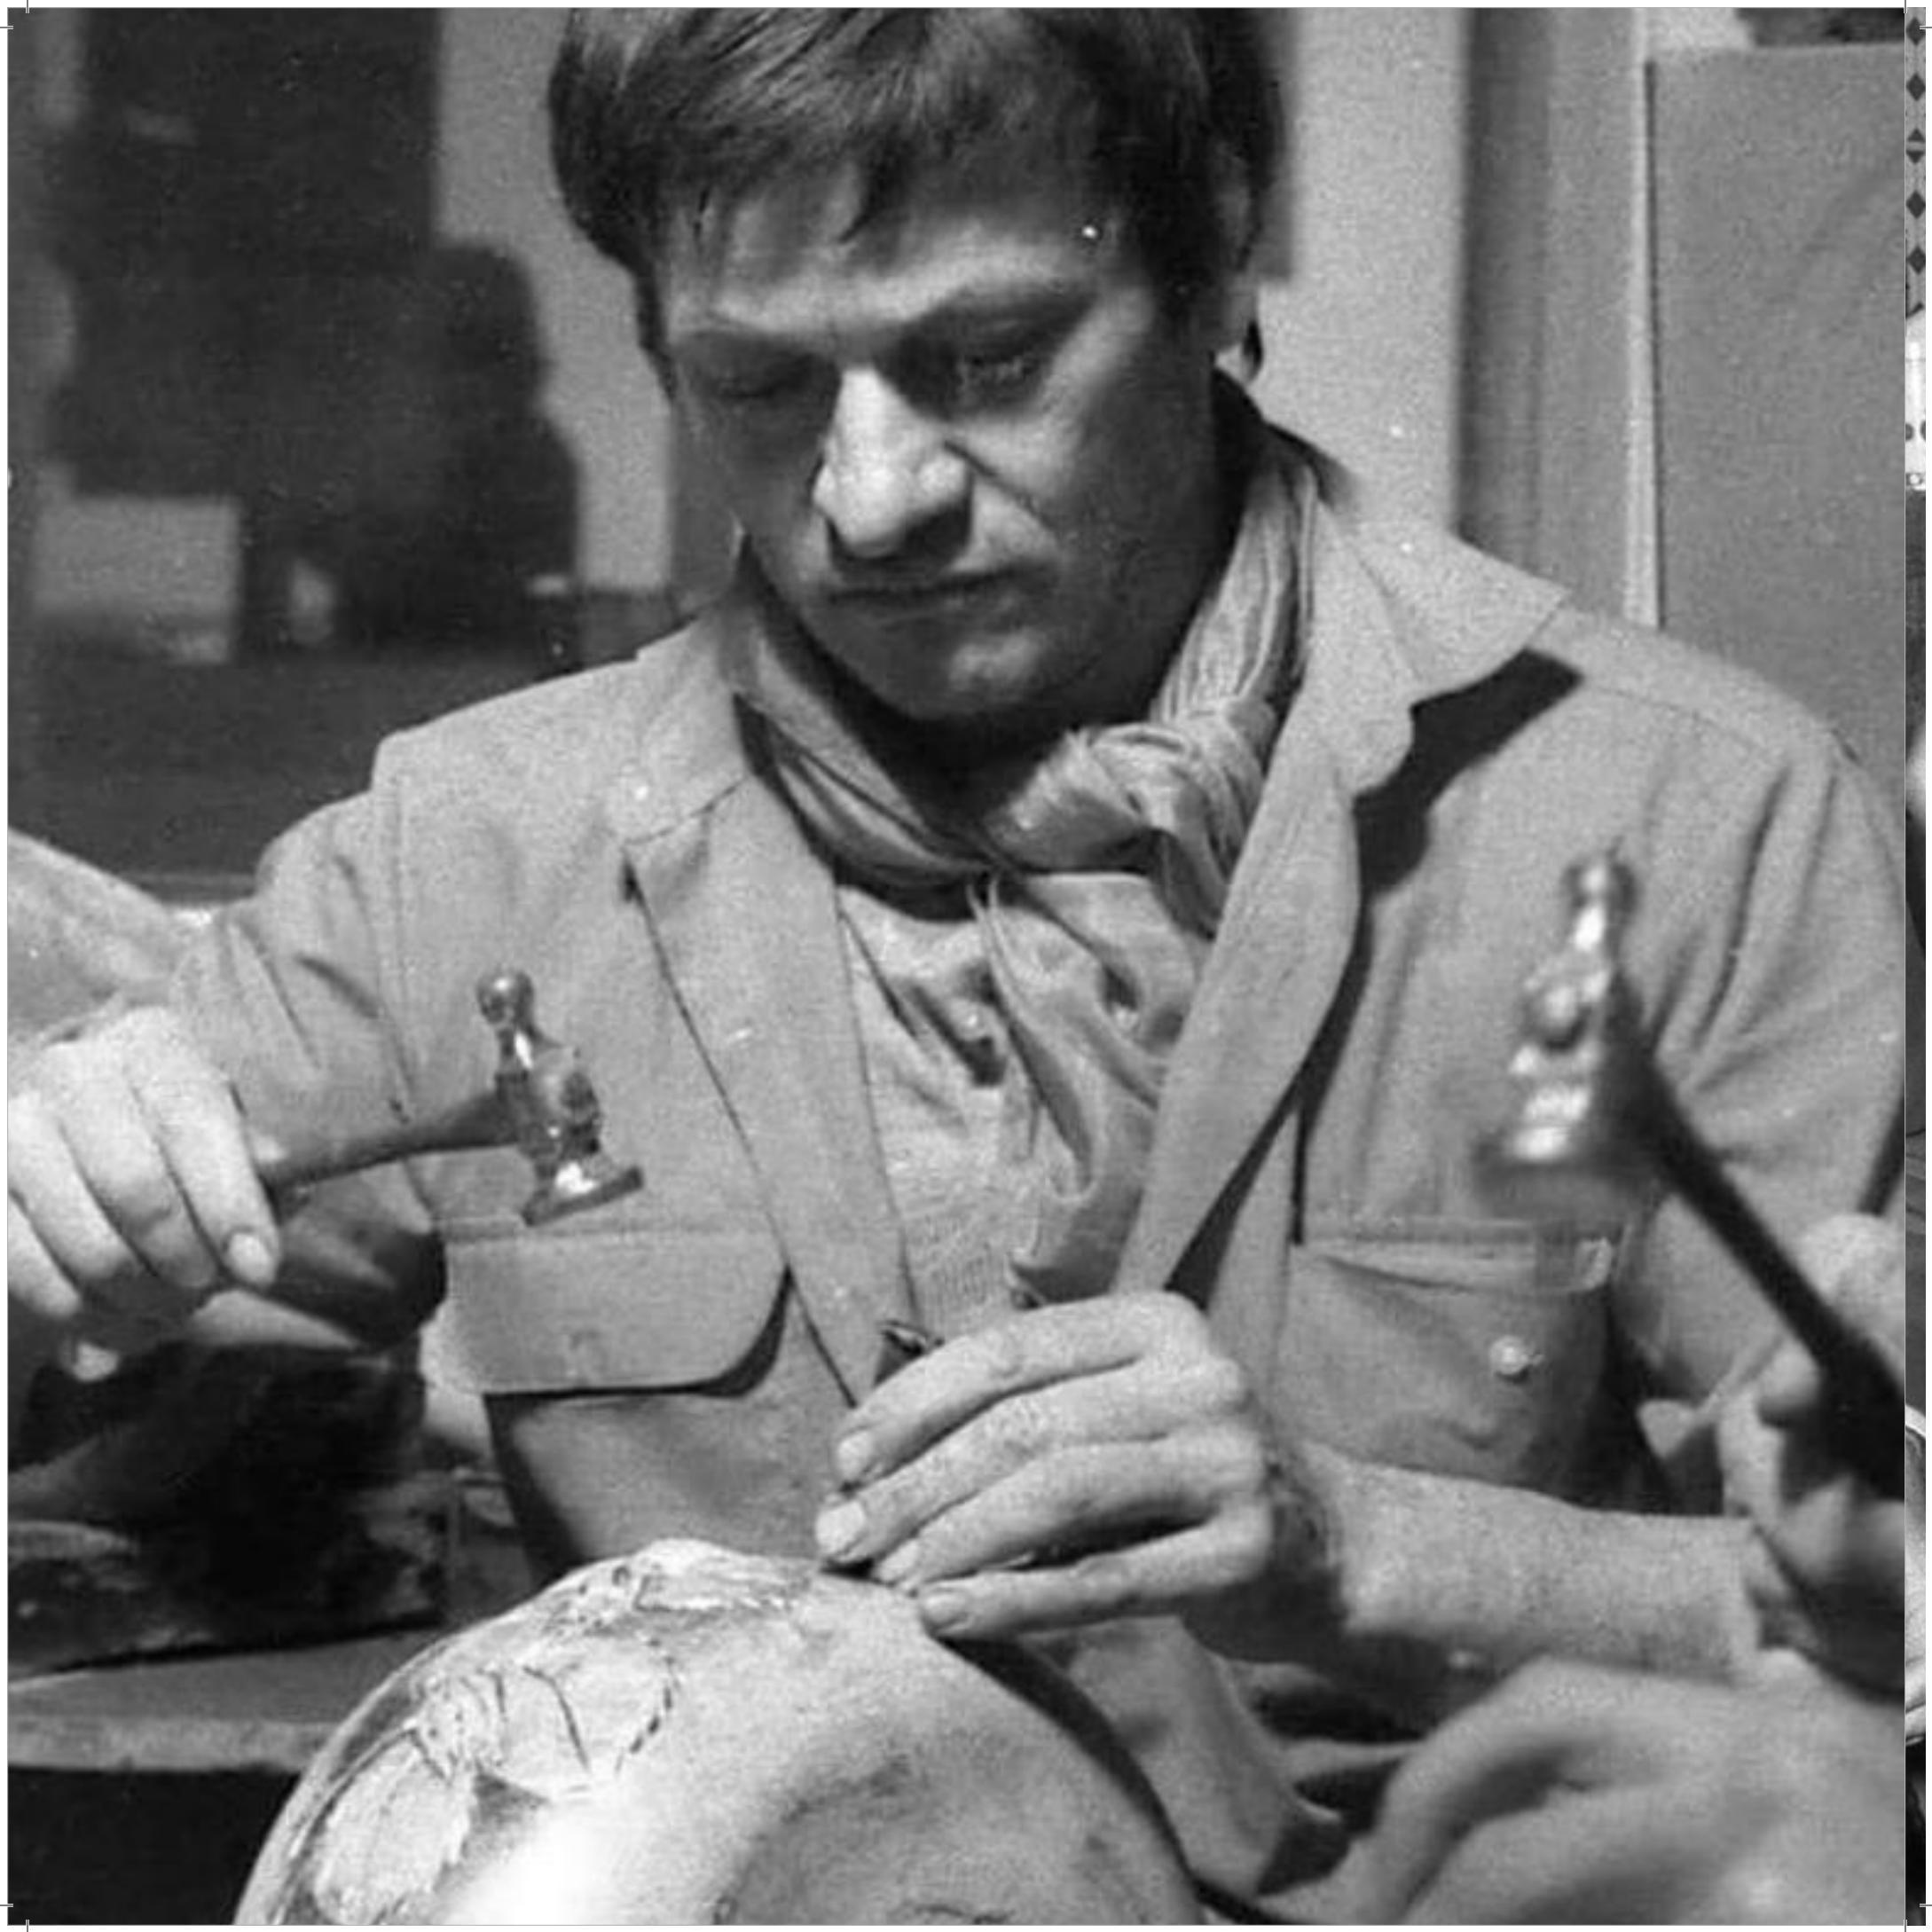

Founded in Florence in 1955 by Brandimarte, a visionary artisan driven by passion and resilience, the brand was born from a bold idea: to elevate silver beyond ornamentation, giving it soul, function, and everyday presence.

What began in a small Florentine workshop soon became a symbol of Italian artisanal excellence. Through unwavering dedication and a distinctive creative vision, Brandimarte transformed silver into a way of life: refined, functional, and timeless.

One of Brandimarte's most iconic innovations is the art of hand-hammering, perfected over the years to create vibrant, textured, and truly unique surfaces. This technique, which blends strength and sensitivity, has become a hallmark of the Brandimarte style — enhancing each piece with a texture that speaks of the artisan's touch and the rhythm of time.

But Brandi's legacy was never his alone. With his family by his side, the Brandimarte name became synonymous with authentic, handcrafted excellence, passed down from generation to generation. Today, guided by the same values and a renewed contemporary spirit, Brandimarte continues to lead in the world of high-end silverware — known for its unmistakable style, exceptional quality, and constant drive for innovation.

This is the story of Brandimarte. A family. A legacy. A name that leads Italian silverware into the future, with the same passion that started it all.

The Art of Chasing

Among the most ancient and prestigious techniques in silver craftsmanship, chasing represents the very essence of Italian artisanal tradition, a tradition rooted in time, patience, and the extraordinary skill of the human hand.

This entirely handmade technique involves shaping the metal's surface without removing any material. Through a meticulous and rhythmic process of delicate hammering with fine chisels, the silver slowly transforms: it rises, curves, and blossoms into reliefs, intricate ornamental motifs, and textured surfaces that play with light and shadow. No two gestures are the same, and no two pieces are ever identical, each is the result of a silent dialogue between the artisan and the material.

In the vision of Brandimarte Guscetti, founder of Brandimarte silversmithing, chasing was never merely a technical process. It was a form of expression, a way to imprint beauty, character, and soul into every creation. His hands, and the hands of the artisans who worked alongside him, transformed functional objects into living works of art, infused with narrative and emotion. Every curve, every texture, every flourish was a story engraved in silver, carrying with it the energy of the maker and the spirit of the tradition.

Today, this legacy endures in our Florentine workshop, where the art of chasing is not just preserved but continuously reinterpreted. Passed down through generations, it remains a cornerstone of the Brandimarte aesthetic, a symbol of timeless elegance and uncompromising authenticity. Each piece we create is a tribute to this heritage: poetry etched into metal, capable of crossing time and speaking to those who value the unique, the handmade, and the eternal.

A LIVING MARK, INVENTED BY BRANDIMARTE.

Brandimarte's philosophy: elegance, well-being, and memory at the table.

For Brandimarte, every silver object was meant to be used, not simply admired.

He believed that silver wasn't a luxury to be shown off, but a companion in daily life, capable of elevating the simplest gestures, like drinking a sip of water or toasting with fine wine, and turning them into true sensory experiences.

The Brandimarte silver goblets and cups are born from this vision: objects that combine function and beauty, tradition and well-being.

Silver is not only beautiful to see and touch, it is a precious, natural, and antibacterial metal, long appreciated for its purifying and health-supporting properties.

Drinking from a silver cup means enjoying cooler water, purer wine, and more elegant moments.

Each piece is hand-hammered in our Florentine workshop using time-honored techniques passed down through generations. The textured surface captures light, reflects the artisan's gesture, and tells a story of craftsmanship and care.

It's an invitation to slow down, savor the moment, and bring meaning back to the rituals of everyday life.

For Brandimarte, silver was never something to keep behind glass. It was — and still is — a living material, made to return to the table, to the hand, to the heart of daily experience.

Because true luxury is the ability to choose beauty in even the smallest acts.

THE ART OF HAMMERING

Among the most iconic gestures in Florentine silversmithing, hand hammering has always been a hallmark of Brandimarte.

This distinctive technique was invented in the 1950s by Brandimarte, who first discovered its potential during a brief period of incarceration. While in prison, he came into contact with Gypsy craftsmen who skillfully hammered copper by hand. Brandi was fascinated by the rhythm, raw energy, and expressiveness of their work.

Once free, he boldly adapted that same technique to silver, a radical idea at the time. The textured surface, so far from the polished perfection of traditional silverware, was initially met with skepticism and criticism. Yet Brandi believed in its beauty. His vision, grounded in authenticity and craftsmanship, soon turned that technique into his greatest strength, a symbol of originality and timeless style.

Every hammer mark is still made by hand, one by one, creating vibrant surfaces that shimmer with movement, warmth, and soul. Brandimarte's hammering is not just a finish: it is a dialogue between artisan and metal, a story etched in silver.

Beyond his creative legacy, Brandimarte was also a pioneer in social responsibility. He was the first to establish training courses for prison inmates, welcoming them into his workshop in Florence and offering them a future through craft.

For Brandimarte, silver was never just a material, it was a tool for redemption, freedom, and expression.

Today, the hammered texture remains an unmistakable signature of excellence, admired around the world.

It carries with it a history of resilience, innovation, and humanity, the very soul of Brandimarte.

THE ART OF FRAMING

At Brandimarte, every frame is much more than a border, it is a celebration of craftsmanship, heritage, and emotion. Born in the heart of Florence, a city known for its timeless artistic legacy, our frames represent a perfect marriage between traditional silversmithing and contemporary design.

Whether encasing a cherished memory, a piece of art, or a symbolic moment, a Brandimarte frame is a timeless object destined to be passed down through generations.

Each frame is handcrafted using high-quality silver, meticulously shaped by skilled artisans who uphold the techniques handed down by our founder, Brandimarte Guscelli. The process is slow, deliberate, and rooted in the values of excellence and patience. We do not follow trends, we preserve beauty, infusing each frame with soul and substance. The soft glow of silver, with its natural warmth and elegance, enhances photographs without overpowering them.

It respects the image, while elevating it.

Our collection offers a variety of designs, from minimalist linear styles to richly ornate patterns inspired by Florentine motifs. Every detail, be it a finely engraved border, a hammered surface, or a delicate bead edge, is the result of deliberate artistry. No two frames are ever exactly alike. Each carries the invisible mark of the hand that shaped it and the spirit of the house that created it.

At Brandimarte, we believe that frames do not merely enclose; they reveal. They tell a story, preserve a legacy, and transform fleeting moments into eternal symbols. Owning a Brandimarte frame means choosing authenticity, embracing elegance, and becoming part of a narrative that spans decades of artistic devotion and human connection.

This is not just silver. This is memory, design, and soul, shaped into form.

THE BRANDI MEDAL

Florence, legends, and a touch of Brandimarte irony.

This unique collection of medals pays homage to the great minds and iconic spirits that shaped Florence: Lorenzo de' Medici, Machiavelli, Galileo, Dante, Leonardo... and, naturally, Brandimarte himself.

On the reverse of each medal, you'll find memorable words, from timeless quotes to sharp wit, like Lorenzo the Magnificent's famous "Let those who wish to be happy, be so."

Completing the collection are two symbols deeply woven into Florence's soul: the Fiorino, echoing the city's golden past, and the Calcio Storico Fiorentino medal, a bold tribute to its fierce traditions.

A celebration of genius, heritage, and the unmistakable charm of Florentine spirit, with a wink from Brandimarte.

Brandimarte presents a collection of historical medals, in memory of the founder's humor and irony.

The Unique Creations of Brandimarte

Brandimarte's creations are the result of artisanal expertise passed down through generations, combined with a contemporary and deeply personal artistic vision. Each piece is born within the atelier as a one-of-a-kind work: not just a silver object, but a story engraved in metal, an emotion shaped by the skilled hands of the artisan.

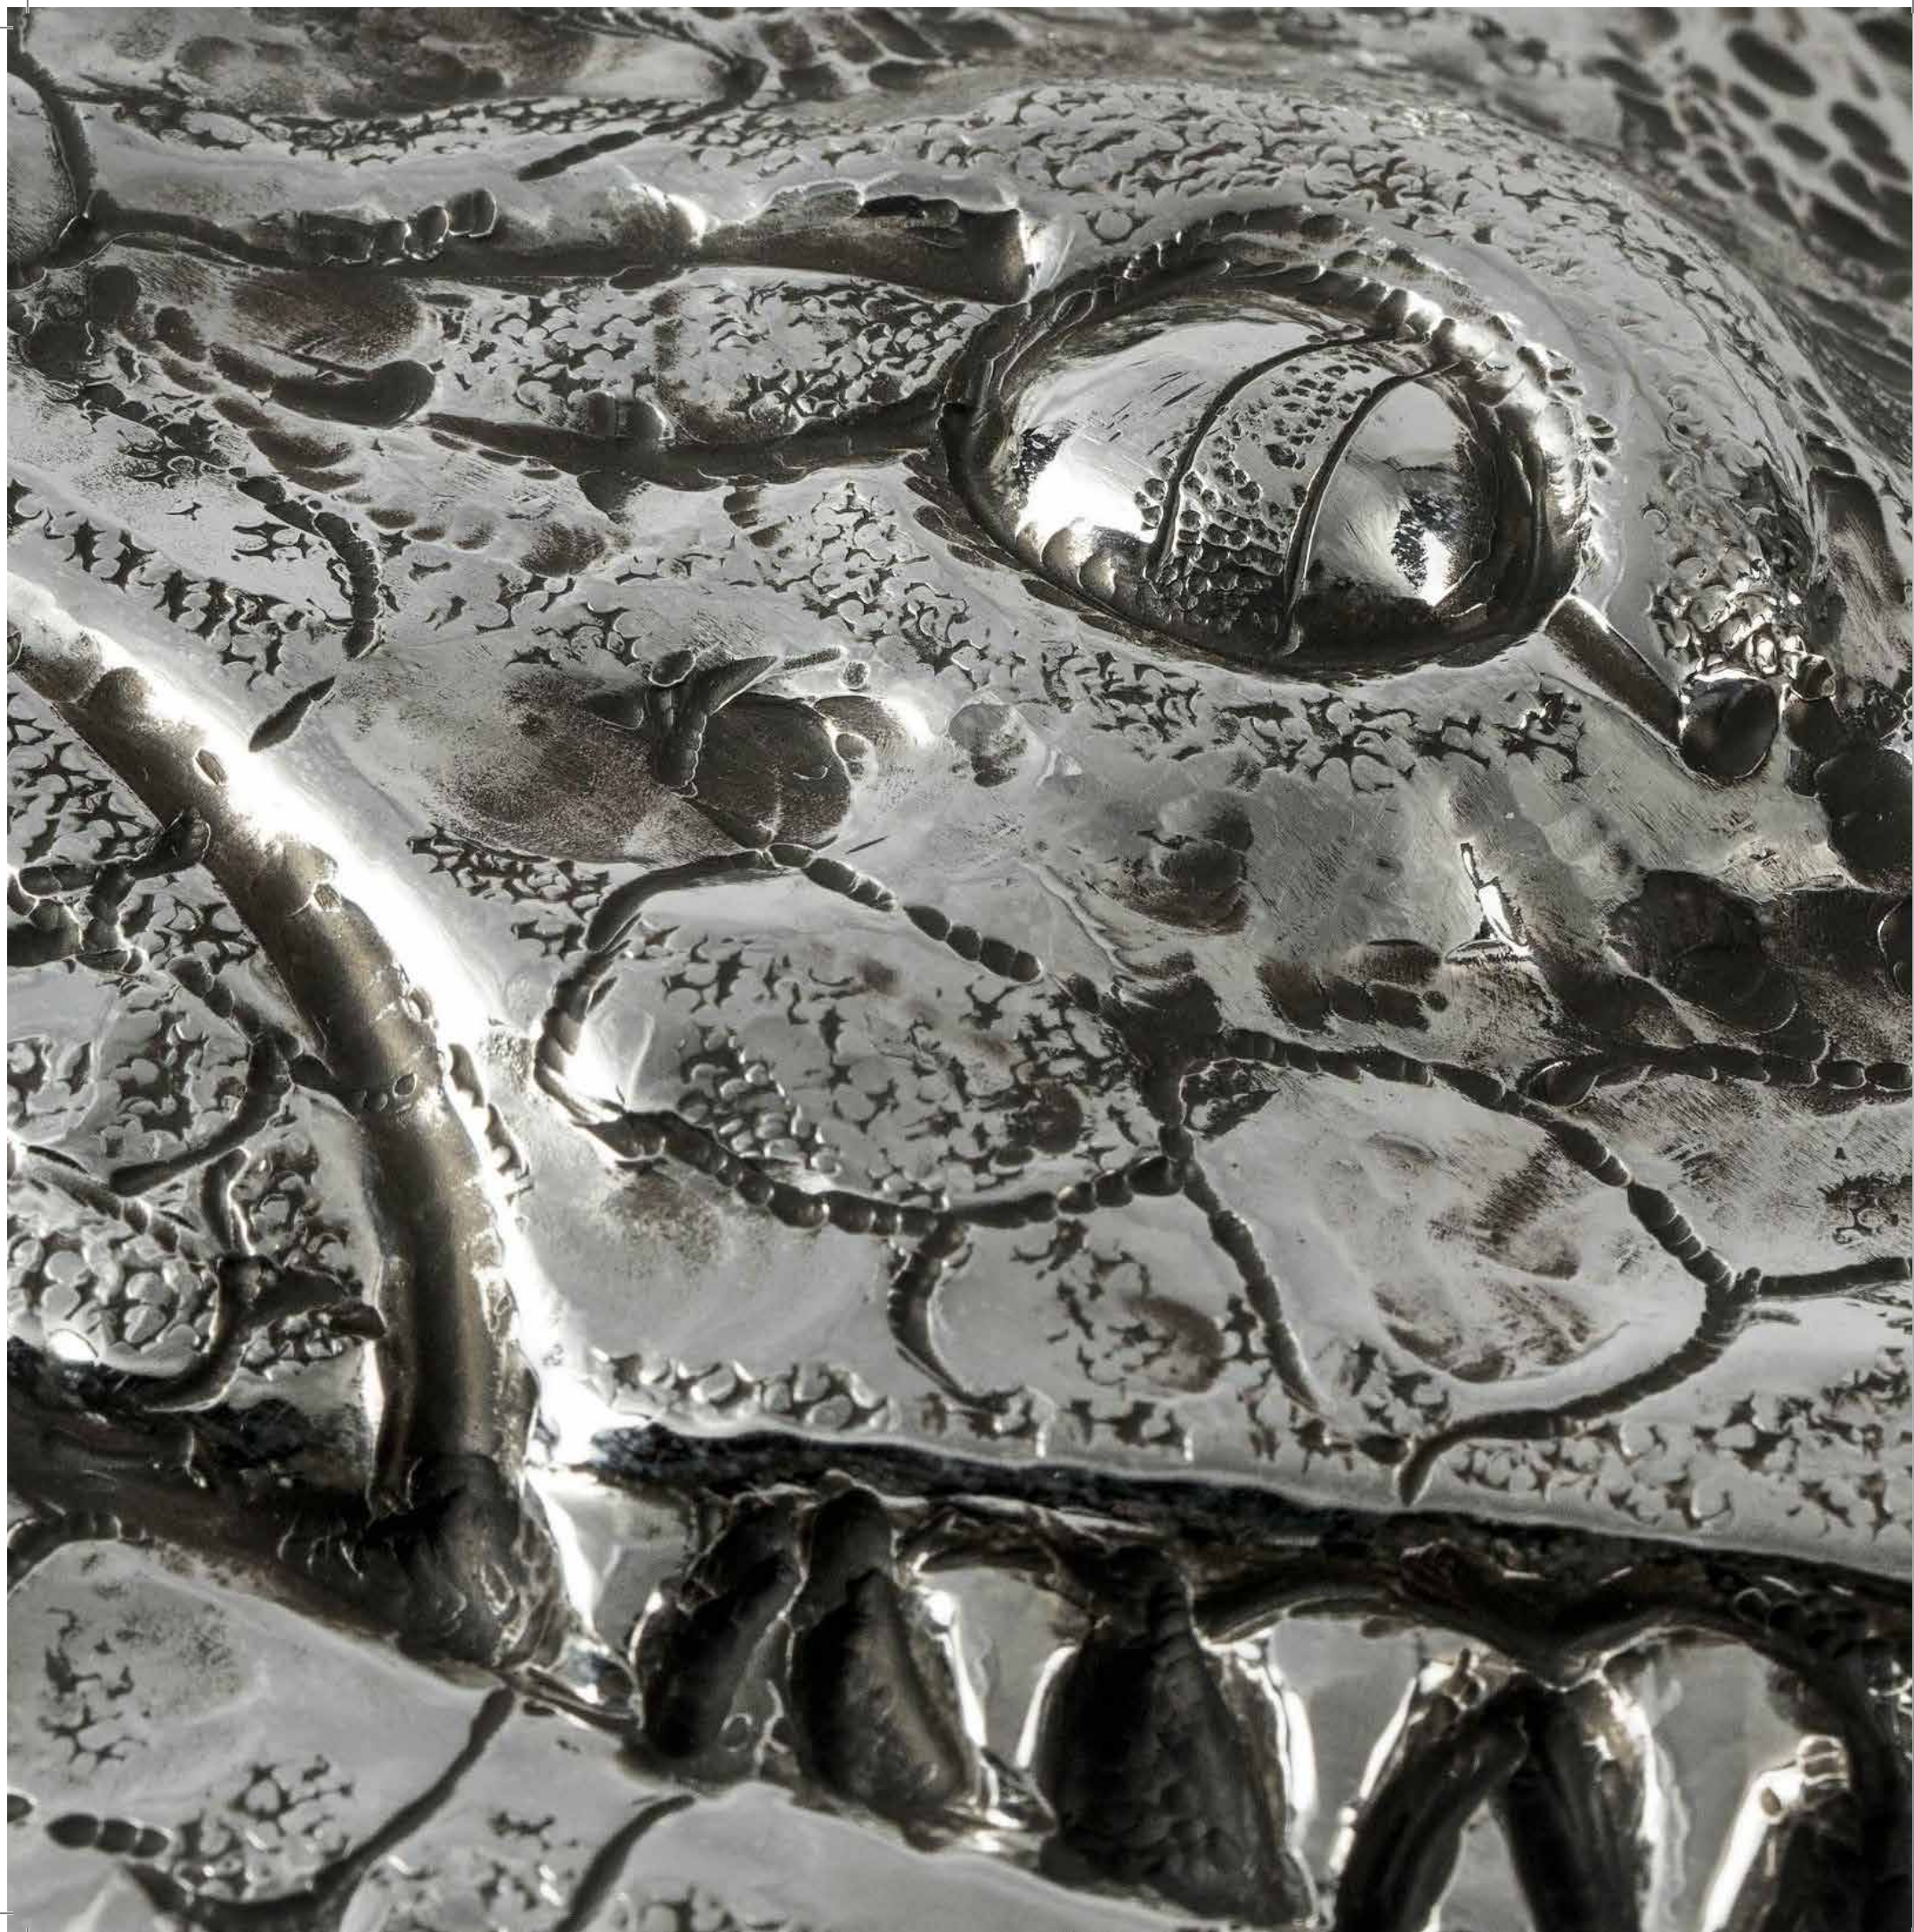

Every creation is entirely handcrafted, using traditional techniques such as chasing, hand-hammering, and engraving, alongside material and stylistic experimentation that bridges past and present. Silver, noble and alive, is worked in a way that enhances its natural imperfections, celebrating the authentic beauty of the material.

These works do not follow an industrial production process, but are brought to life on commission only, through direct dialogue with the client. Each piece is fully customizable: from dimensions to shape, from symbolic details to intended function.

Every request is welcomed as creative inspiration, transformed into an object that reflects the taste, story, and desire of the person who commissioned it.

This deeply human and relational approach makes Brandi Marte not just an artistic workshop, but a space where silver becomes an emotional experience, a tangible memory, and an artistic gesture.

Each creation is unique. Each creation is unrepeatable. Each creation is Brandimarte.

Elegance with a moral, sculpted in silver.
